

Richard T. Scott, Jr., MD, FACOG, HCLD; Global Leadership in Reproductive Medicine

Dr. Richard T. Scott, Jr. is a Reproductive Endocrinologist and founding partner of Reproductive Medicine Associates of New Jersey where he functions as scientific director, clinical director, embryology/andrology lab director and director of research. Dr. Scott is Professor and Fellow Director of the Reproductive Endocrine / Infertility Fellowship. He is also Chairman of the Board for Foundation for Embryonic Competence which supports research into embryonic reproductive competence. He received his medical degree from the University of Virginia and completed his Reproductive Endocrine fellowship at the Jones Institute in Norfolk, Virginia. Dr. Scott has published over 500 peer reviewed articles, book chapters, and abstracts on many aspects of clinical ART, embryology, and reproductive genetics. Dr Scott has been awarded the ASRM Prize Paper Award 3 times, SART Prize Paper Award 3 times, and Professor of The Year by the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists.